STATEMENT OF FACTS

20. Transport Inc is a transportation service that transports individuals to and from doctor's appointments throughout New York.

Duties Performed and Hours Worked

21. Defendants have employed Plaintiff as a driver from in or about 2011 through the present.

22. Plaintiff, as a driver, was responsible for transporting clients to doctor's appointments, waiting for the client to finish their appointment, and driving clients back home, among other miscellaneous duties.

23. The vehicle that Plaintiff drove weighs less than 10,000 pounds.

24. Defendants did not allow Plaintiff to provide any services to the general public or to make any unscheduled trips or street pick-ups.

25. Defendants' employees, including Plaintiff, did not provide any services and were not available for hire to the general public without a scheduled pick-up and drop-off.

26. Defendants' employees, including Plaintiff, are unable to be hailed by the general public, and require knowledge of the passengers and destinations before providing services.

27. Defendants' employees, including Plaintiff, drove passengers to fixed terminal destinations according to prearranged schedules.

28. During his employment with Defendants, due to high turnover, upon information and belief, Plaintiff worked with at least between 40 and 50 other drivers. From personally observing and speaking with them, Plaintiff knows that his coworkers performed the same primary duties as him and were compensated in the same manner by Defendants.

29. From in or about December 2015 until in or about June 2021, Plaintiff typically worked five days per week, from approximately 10:00 a.m. until approximately 8:00 p.m. or later. As such, Plaintiff worked approximately 50 hours or more per week during this time.

30. From in or about July 2021 through the present, Plaintiff typically worked two days per week, from approximately 10:30 a.m. until approximately 7:00 p.m. or later. As such, Plaintiff worked approximately 17 hours per week during this time.

31. From in or about December 2015 until in or about June 2021, Plaintiff worked more than 40 hours in any given week.

32. From speaking with his coworkers and personal observations, Plaintiff knows that other drivers were, like him, regularly scheduled to work and did, in fact, work more than 40 hours in a week.

33. When Plaintiff and other individuals worked for Defendants, they were not given any meal break period for any shift.

34. Plaintiff and other drivers regularly did not have uninterrupted meal breaks.

Hourly Rate, Overtime, Deductions

35. Throughout his employment, Defendants paid Plaintiff a daily rate for all hours he worked.

36. Defendants paid Plaintiff a daily rate regardless of the hours he worked in a day and in a week.

37. Throughout his employment, Defendants typically paid Plaintiff $120.00 per day. Defendants would occasionally pay Plaintiff slightly more or slightly less than this daily rate with no reasoning for the rate fluctuation. These rate of pay fluctuations typically ranged from $110.00 to $130.00.

38. Plaintiff and other similarly situated employees paid for the gas that was necessary to drive to their customers, which amounted to approximately $40.00 per day.

39. Defendants did not reimburse Plaintiff and other similarly situated employees for any of the gas that they purchase per day, further reducing their effective hourly rate below the Labor Law's minimum wage.

40. As such, Plaintiff's effective hourly rate was approximately $8.00 per hour from in or about December 2015 until in or about June 2021, and approximately $9.41 from in or about July 2021 through the present.

41. Defendants paid Plaintiff below the minimum wage requirements of the NYLL for the entirety of his employment.

42. The applicable minimum wage under New York and Federal law during the applicable years were as follows:

Year	FLSA Min. Wage ²	Labor Law Min. Wage ³
2015	$7.25	$8.75
2016	$7.25	$9.00
2017	$7.25	$11.00
2018	$7.25	$13.00
2019 - 2021	$7.25	$15.00

43. Although Plaintiff and other similarly situated employees regularly worked more than 40 hours per week, Defendants did not pay them overtime premium pay.

44. Plaintiff's effective hourly rate was below New York's minimum wage during the entirety of his employment.

45. From speaking with them and personal observations, Plaintiff knows that other drivers, like him, were paid below the statutory minimum wage, were not paid overtime premium pay, and were not reimbursed for gas expenses.

Untimely Payment of Wages

46. Plaintiff and other similarly situated employees were required to, and did, spend more than 25% of their time performing physical labor.

³ <https://www.labor.ny.gov/workerprotection/laborstandards/workprot/minwage.shtm> (last visited December 9, 2021).

47. Defendants paid Plaintiff an hourly rate.
48. Defendants paid Plaintiff every two weeks, not every week.
49. By paying Plaintiff every two weeks, Defendants did not pay him for the first week he worked within each pay period within 7 days.

50. Due to Defendants' pay practices, Plaintiff is owed an amount equal to 100% of the untimely wages, or wages from the first week of each pay period during the relevant time period.

51. From speaking with them and personal observations, Plaintiff knows that other drivers, like him, were not paid for the first week they worked within each pay period within 7 days.

Labor Law Notice and Wage Statement Violations

52. Defendants failed to provide Plaintiff and other similarly situated employees with the Notice and Acknowledgment of Payrate and Payday under N.Y. Lab. Law § 195.1 when he was hired or at any point during his employment.

53. Likewise, Defendants did not provide Plaintiff and other similarly situated employees with accurate wage statements under N.Y. Lab. Law § 195.3 with any wage payment.

54. Defendants did not post at the restaurant a poster advising Plaintiff and other employees of their right to a minimum wage and overtime premium pay.

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

55. Plaintiff assert these allegations and claims on his own and on behalf of a class of persons under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a), (b)(2) and (b)(3):

All persons whom Defendants employ and have employed who were drivers, and other comparable positions with different titles, at any time since December 15, 2015 to the entry of judgment in this case, who were non-exempt employees within the meaning of the New York Labor Law (the “Class Members”).

56. The Class Members identified above are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. Although the precise number of such persons is unknown, and the facts on which the calculation of that number are presently within Defendants’ sole control, upon information and belief, more than 50 Class Members exist.

57. Plaintiff’s claims are typical of the Class Members’, and a class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy, particularly in the context of wage and hour litigation where individual plaintiffs lack the financial resources to vigorously prosecute a lawsuit in federal court against a corporate defendant.

58. Defendants have acted or refused to act on grounds generally applicable to the Class Members, making appropriate final injunctive relief or corresponding declaratory relief with respect to the Class Members.

59. Plaintiff is committed to pursuing this action and has retained competent counsel experienced in employment law, wage and hour law, and class action litigation.

60. Plaintiff has the same interest in this matter as all other Class Members and their claims are typical of Class Members’.

61. Common questions of law and fact exist as to the Class Members that predominate over any questions solely affecting the individual Class Members, including:

a. whether Defendants employed Plaintiff and the Class Members, individually or jointly, within the meaning of the Labor Law;

- b. whether Defendants failed to keep true and accurate time records for all hours worked by Plaintiff and the Class Members;
- c. what proof of hours worked is sufficient where employers fail in their duty to maintain time records;
- d. whether Defendants failed or refused to pay the Class Members minimum wages, overtime premium pay for all hours worked in excess of 40 hours per workweek, and spread-of-hours pay;
- e. whether Defendants failed or refused to reimburse the Class Members for work-related expenses;
- f. whether Defendants failed or refused to timely pay the Class Members' wages;
- g. whether Defendants failed to provide the Class Members with wage notices and wages statements under Labor Law §§ 195.1 and 195.3;
- h. whether Defendants failed to post or keep posted a notice explaining the minimum wages and overtime pay rights provided under the Labor Law in any area where Plaintiff and the Class Members are employed;
- i. whether the individual Defendants participated in the day-to-day management of the restaurant and are "joint employers" and liable to Plaintiff and the Class Members;
- j. whether Defendants are liable for all damages claimed hereunder, including but not limited to, interest, costs and disbursements and attorneys' fees; and
- k. whether Defendants should be enjoined from such violations of the Labor Law in the future.

COLLECTIVE ACTION ALLEGATIONS

62. Under 29 U.S.C. § 206, Plaintiff seeks to assert these allegations and claims as a collective action:

All persons whom Defendants employ and have employed who were drivers, and other comparable positions with different titles, at any time since December 15, 2018 to the entry of judgment in this case, who were non-exempt employees within the meaning of the FLSA (the “Collective Action Members”).

63. Plaintiff and the Collective Action Members are similarly situated on several legal and factual issues, including:

- a. whether Defendants employed the Collective Action Members within the meaning of the FLSA;
- b. whether the Collective Action Members performed similar duties;
- c. whether Defendants willfully or recklessly violated the FLSA;
- d. whether Defendants failed to pay the Collective Action Members overtime compensation for hours worked in excess of 40 hours per workweek, violating the FLSA and the regulations promulgated thereunder; and
